This past year, Washington, D.C. shone at the center of US-Japan friendship. January in D.C. became “Japanuary.” Japan’s Prime Minister Kishida and key members of his cabinet made a historic visit to our city to formalize a major step forward in the US-Japan Alliance.

But for those in the National Capital Region community, Japanuary was no aberration—it fits a long-term trend of rising excitement about Japan in the National Capital Region. This year alone, a Japanese food hall has opened just northwest of Union Station. Samurai and anime film series appeared as summer movie offerings. The American Craft Sake Festival descended upon Charlottesville, VA. Excellent ramen shops continue popping up around the region, becoming nearly ubiquitous. The list goes on.

As always, Japan-America Society of Washington DC is thrilled to be part of the excitement. The Society’s Sakura Matsuri-Japanese Street Festival, generally regarded as the largest Japan celebration anywhere in the country, returned to downtown DC for its 61st year. Our National Japan Bowl, America’s Japanese language competition for high school students, returned in College Park as an in-person competition for the first time in three years, hosting over 150 students from across the country. Enrollment in our Japanese Language School has enjoyed steady growth. Our Tanaka and Green Scholarship program helped send seven college students from our area to Japan for study abroad experiences.

The following report details these and many more events and offerings through which Japan-America Society of Washington DC worked over the past year to bring Japan to the National Capital Region. This is all おかげさまで (thanks to you), and a reflection of the incredible energy and generosity of this community, and our shared enthusiasm for Japan, its friendship, and its culture. We look forward to working with our friends, neighbors, and members over the coming year to keep up the incredible US-Japan energy in the National Capital Region.
ABOUT JASWDC

OUR VISION

To be widely recognized as the National Capital area’s most dynamic, trusted, and accessible promoter of understanding between Americans and Japanese of every generation.

OUR MISSION

Drawing on the unique resources of Washington, D.C., the nation’s capital, JASWDC promotes friendship and understanding between Americans and Japanese through dynamic and innovative cultural, educational, public policy, and business programming, including programs of national significance.

OUR VALUES

- We are trusted stewards of the U.S.–Japan relationship, committed to mutual understanding and service to our community.

- We are friendly and welcoming to all who seek to advance their understanding of Japan and contribute to US-Japan ties.

- We are reliable and trusted partners to other institutions.

- We operate with honesty, integrity, transparency, and the highest ethical standards.

Volunteers
The Japan-America Society of Washington DC relies on the generous support of over 700 volunteers to run its programs and events each year.
Sakura Matsuri is the largest celebration of Japanese culture in the National Capital Region. It is proud to participate in the National Cherry Blossom Festival as a premier event and its primary Japanese cultural event. As JASWDC’s longest-standing program, Sakura Matsuri began as a small “friends and family bazaar and now regularly attracts 40,000 people each year to Pennsylvania Ave. Sakura Matsuri is held each year on Pennsylvania and Constitution Avenues, NW, between 3rd and 7th Streets, near the Capitol Building and is proud to return in April 2024 for its third year as a two-day festival.

Jessica Webster and Sam Harris, Festival Director
Colette H. Fozard, Festival Manager
Sam Harris, Festival Coordinator

The management of the Sakura Matsuri also includes 90 volunteer chairs of 18 Sakura Matsuri Subcommittees. These subcommittees manage different logistical aspects of the Matsuri, as well as the key areas of the festival: Taste of Japan, Arts & Culture, Ginza Marketplace and Japan Now. These various areas of the festival are, in turn, staffed by over 500 “day-of” volunteers.

FY23 REPORT

Sakura Matsuri – Japanese Street Festival was held on April 15th and 16th 2023. The event, located in the heart of Washington, DC, attracted over 35,000 attendees across two days and highlighted Japanese culture with performances, language competitions, technology exhibitions, cocktail and cooking demonstrations, sake tasting, shopping, and more.

This year’s Sakura Matsuri saw the largest number of vendors and exhibitors, with over 120 vendors, non-profits and other organizations participating at the Matsuri. The Society was honored to host a visit from Mrs. Yuko Kishida, spouse of Japan’s Prime Minister Fumio Kishida, where she visited several of the Matsuri’s attractions and exhibiting organizations. In her thank you letter to the Society, she described the Sakura Matsuri as a “precious event that connects the hearts of the American and Japanese people.”
The National Japan Bowl is America’s premier high school-level Japanese language competition. Created by the Japan-America Society of Washington DC in 1992, the National Japan Bowl serves as an invaluable tool for promoting Japanese language programs in American high schools, while motivating American students to elevate their studies to the next level.

Held each spring as a participating event of the National Cherry Blossom Festival, the National Japan Bowl attracts roughly 200 high school students from across the country. Over the two-day competition, teams compete across three levels in a series of preliminary, conversation, and championship rounds. The winning team from the National Japan Bowl's top level is awarded a trip to Japan, where team members are received by dignitaries such as the United States ambassador to Japan, Japan's First Lady, and Princess Takamado, the competition's honorary patron. The National Japan Bowl tests high school students on their understanding of Japanese language, but also the cultural and historical context that brings the language to life.

JASWDC also supports 3 Regional Japan Bowls through the United States and 11 Global Japan Bowls that have been developed by JASWDC partner organizations.

FY23 REPORT

On April 13-14, 2023, the Japan-America Society of Washington DC (JASWDC) held the 31st National Japan Bowl®, live and in-person, after three years of “Digital Japan Bowls” during the pandemic era. Students participated in two days of intense competition that culminated in a championship round, where the top three teams from each level put their Japanese language and cultural knowledge skills to the test to claim the title of 2023 National Japan Bowl Champions. Held at the University of Maryland, at the College Park Marriott Hotel & Conference Center, the event welcomed 299 in-person guests, featuring 51 student teams from 13 states and territories. 734 people tuned in to watch a delayed “Japan Bowl Broadcast” of the Level 4 Championship Round, which was aired on JASWDC's YouTube channel.

This year’s participants were welcomed with messages of support from JASWDC friends such as Princess Takamado (Honorary Patron of the Japan Bowl), US Ambassador Rahm Emanuel, Japan’s Ambassador Tomita Koji, White House AAPI advisor Erika Moritsugu and Minister of Chancery and Public Affairs at the Embassy of Japan, Minister Koichi Ai. We were also joined by special guests judges including Minister Ai, JCIE USA Executive Director Kazuyo Kato, Chief of NHK’s Washington Bureau Masaru Takagi, Nishiura Style calligraphy instructor Yoshiko Tsuda, and Mari Hamada of University of Maryland.

The Level 4 Champions, along with several of the Regional Japan Bowls winners, were invited to attend the 2023 Japan Bowl Champions’ Trip, co-hosted by the Japan Ministry of Foreign Affairs’ Kakehashi Project and JASWDC. Students visited Tokyo and Okayama Prefecture, and called on senior government figures including US Ambassador Rahm Emmanuel, Japan’s First Lady Yuko Kishida, Okayama Governor Ryuta Ibaragi, and State Minister of Foreign Affairs Kenji Yamada.

The Japan-America Society of Washington DC operates the premier Japanese Language School for adults in the Washington DC area. Many of our students say that it is also the best. The school's core offering is 20-30 Japanese classes at four levels, from beginner to advanced. There are three terms per year and classes meet once a week for 1.5 hours.

PERSONNEL

FY23 REPORT

The Society successfully shifted to a three-term system, each lasting 13 weeks starting from the 2022 fall term.

Continuing to adapt to the challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic, the JLS maintained its commitment to providing high-quality Japanese language classes by offering all courses online through Zoom.

JLS witnessed a positive trend in enrollment, with the JLS welcoming a total of 689 students across 92 classes. This increase in student participation reflects the school's dedication to promoting Japanese language and culture.

To accommodate the growing number of classes and introduce new course types, the JLS hired 9 new instructors during FY23. The addition of these talented instructors contributed to a diverse range of classes and enhanced the overall learning experience.

The JLS instructors, totaling 25, played a vital role in fostering strong US-Japan relations. Additionally, 15 active instructors during each term dedicated themselves not only to teaching but also to support other activities organized by JASWDC, including volunteering at the Sakura Matsuri Street festival.

The Society's US-Japan Capital Gala and Silent Auction, held in Washington DC each fall, serves as the preeminent annual celebration of the US-Japan friendship in the Nation's Capital. The event has been referred to as “Washington’s US-Japan prom.” The Gala and Silent Auction are an important source of financial support for the Japan-America Society of Washington DC's many educational and cultural activities, which introduce Japan and Japanese culture to residents of the Nation's Capital Region.

FY23 REPORT

On Thursday, October 13 2022 the Japan-America Society of Washington DC was proud to host our 36th annual US-Japan Capital Gala and Silent Auction at the Salamander Hotel, Washington DC.

With over 250 friends and colleagues from across Washington DC government, academia, and the private sector in attendance, the Gala served as a celebration not only of the United States-Japan partnership and its leaders, young and old but also of the vital role that the bilateral relationship plays in our two countries and for our partners around the world. Over the years, the Gala has welcomed some of America and Japan's most distinguished leaders. This year it was also our honor to host esteemed guests including Ambassador Koji Tomita, Dr. Endo Nobuhiro of NEC, and Charles D. Lake II of AFLAC International. The Society presented the Honorable Kurt Campbell the Annual Marshall Green Award. Reiko Hirai of DC Sake Co and Mid-Atlantic Association of Teachers of Japanese received the Society's annual John and Hiroko Malott Leadership Award.

The US-Japan Capital Gala and Silent Auction are a primary source of support for the Japan-America Society of Washington DC's hundreds of annual educational, cultural, and networking activities, including the National Japan Bowl and Washington, DC's Sakura Matsuri - Japanese Street Festival. This year's Gala also presented exciting new opportunities to collaborate with American and Japanese sake brewers Hakkaisan, North American Sake Brewery, Brooklyn Kura, and others.

In 2014 JASWDC established the Tanaka and Green Academic Scholarships to support short-term academic study (one semester or one academic year) at colleges and universities in Japan. The scholarships are made possible thanks to the Society's H. William and Lily Tanaka Scholarship Endowment and the Marshal and Lispenard Green Educational Endowment.

The Society will award up to $5,000 for one academic year and up to $4,000 for one academic semester for the 2023-2024 academic year. The scholarship may be used for any combination of tuition and other academic fees, room and board, travel and transportation (including travel within Japan), and other approved expenses.

Japan-in-a-Suitcase (JiS) is a program that packs a little bit of Japan into a suitcase and brings it to children at schools, libraries, camps, and festivals in the Greater Washington, DC area. The goal of the program is to promote understanding of Japanese culture to school children from kindergarten and up through presentations, hands-on activities, games, and demonstrations. In the past, JiS has also visited the Japanese Ambassador's residence, the US Department of State, and the Library of Congress for Japanese culture-related educational programs. In a typical year, we visit over 40 schools, libraries, and organizations, and reach out to over 2000 children in elementary and middle schools. The program is offered by the Society as a free service to the National Capital Region community.

FY23 REPORT

The Society has held 12 virtual Japan-in-a Suitcase visits since August 1, 2022. From a basic introduction of Japanese culture to themes requested by the school (haiku, music, anime), JASWDC intern Liam Cophlan engaged classes through use of tools such as Prezi, PowerPoint, and YouTube videos.

In an effort to continue providing Japanese cultural content aimed at students, the Society has continued to produce JiS-branded videos on Facebook and Instagram, which feature lessons about Japanese culture and tutorials on various Japanese crafts for children.

PROGRAM PLANS

The Society aims to resume in-person school visits beginning in 2024, as school visit policies begin to loosen in the post-pandemic era. JASWDC staff are working on a strategy to increase outreach to new schools in the DMV area, while maintaining the online school visit program and production of JiS-branded media.

The long-term goal for the program remains expanding its reach into underprivileged communities throughout the Washington, DC area, improving opportunities for children to learn about and develop interest in Japanese culture.
In addition to the Society’s core programs (Sakura Matsuri, Japan Bowl, US-Japan Capital Gala, and our Japanese Language School), the Society hosts many programs that occur on a regular or semi-regular basis. In contrast to our core events, which hold nationwide and sometimes global significance, the Society’s ongoing programs fulfill our primary mission as one of the nation’s Japan America Societies, providing access to Japanese cultural and topical events for our local community.

FY23 REPORT

In FY23, many of the Society’s programs resumed as in-person, following the pandemic. The Society was excited to inaugurate the Haiku Group, launched by the Society in collaboration with renowned haiku poet and JASWDC Board Member, Abigail Friedman. Haiku Club provides an opportunity for our community to convene and enjoy the art of haiku in a fun and friendly atmosphere.

Several Society programs, such as the Society’s Networking Lunch in Japanese and J-Book Club, have continued as online programs, due to the convenience of the format. This year, the Society introduced a new take on our Japanese cooking classes, Ouchigohan, in partnership with Table for Two and other Japan America Societies.

The Society also presented an online Haiku workshop, in partnership with Brendan Morley from George Washington University.
In FY22, JASWDC hosted four annually-recurring or one-time events.

U.S.-JAPAN ALLIANCE IN THE INDO-PACIFIC

On February 8, 2023, the Japan-America Society of Washington DC, the National War College, and the National War College Alumni Association hosted the 8th annual partnership event, U.S.-Japan Alliance in the Indo Pacific (formerly “JUMP”).

The event, “Contemporary Role of the Defense Sector,” was held in-person at the historic Arnold Auditorium of the National War College and hosted a combined total of 180+ in-person and virtual speakers and attendees.

The evening featured remarks from Ryan Shaffer (JASWDC), Brigadier General Jeffrey Hurlbert, (National War College) Ambassador Kurt Tong (The Asia Group), followed by an Armchair Discussion, entitled “View from the Defense Industry” with keynote speaker, Om Prakash, (Northrop Grumman), who participated virtually from Tokyo. A panel discussion, moderated by JASWDC Counselor Sheila Smith, with commentary from Randy Yoshimura, (Sumitomo), Komei Isozaki, (Hudson Institute), Ron Lopez, (Astroscale), and Motosada Matano, (Embassy of Japan).

Following the event discussion was an intimate reception in the historic Roosevelt Hall at the National War College.

JAPAN IN 2023

On January 24, the Japan-America Society of Washington DC and the Center for East Asia Policy Studies at the Brookings Institution, hosted the ninth annual Japan in the Year program, “Japan in 2023.” JASWDC is grateful for the generous funding and support it received from the National Association of Japan-America Societies (NAJAS) and the Embassy of Japan. The event invited senior and next-generation Japanese and American experts and officials to look ahead at what 2023 holds in store for Japan’s domestic political and economic affairs, and for Japan’s diplomacy.

The program featured an armchair discussion with Ambassador Koji Tomita, moderated by Mireya Solis, two panel discussions, and a pre-recorded keynote discussion between Ryan Shaffer and Ambassador Rahm Emanuel.

Event panelists included Matthew Goodman and Chris Johnstone of Center for Strategic and International Studies, Randall Jones (Center on Japanese Economy and Business), Tobias Harris, (Asia Program, German Marshall Fund), and the panel moderator Shihoko Goto (Wilson Center).
SHOKIBARAI - SUMMER NETWORKING RECEPTION

On June 20, the Society partnered with Hudson Institute and Kirin USA to co-host the 2023 Shokibarai Summer Party.

Attendees enjoyed Japanese cuisine and a range of Japanese beverages provided by Kirin and other partners, all while enjoying the picturesque view of DC from the Hudson Institute rooftop patio. Remarks were presented by hosts Ryan Shaffer (JASWDC President) and Kenneth R. Weinstein (Japan Chair at Hudson Institute) followed by a toast from Andrew Lee (Acting Director of the Office of Japan Affairs at the State Department).

SHINNENKAI – NEW YEARS PARTY

On January 27, the Society partnered with JAXA (Japan Aerospace Exploration Agency) and Kirin USA to co-host our annual 2023 Shinnenkai – New Year Party.

The event followed a JAXA seminar, which included a keynote lecture on space science by Dr. Hitoshi Kuninaka, Vice President/Director General of the Institute of Space and Astronautical Science at JAXA, as well as an overview JAXA’s FY2023.
Digital storytelling is the backbone of any social media strategy but is especially key when it comes to promoting the activities of small non-profit organizations such as the Society. In every post, comment, and photo, it is our aim to communicate the Society’s role as a bridge between the US and Japan at the people-to-people level in all facets, from cultural to political.

The Society continued to see strong growth in online followers and increased audience engagement. The continuation of our cornerstone social media series Japan in DC and Japan Memory Monday provided valuable opportunities to showcase Washington DC's Japanese community and connect with followers and members. In FY23, the Society developed its use of Feathr to manage online marketing and digital communications, which has elevated Society campaigns for promoting ticket sales for the Sakura Matsuri, Individual Membership, and registration for the Japanese Language School.

WEBSITE

The Society’s website, www.jaswdc.org, is its main hub of information. Prospective students of the language school, program attendees, and those interested in US-Japan relations visit the site to learn more about our mission, our activities, and our upcoming programs and events.

The website has the most traffic during the registration periods of the Japanese Language School as well as during the springtime (February-April), as people visit our site to find out more information about the Sakura Matsuri and Japan Bowl. In general, the Upcoming Events page is the most popular page of the site.

NEWSLETTER

The Society sends out a bi-weekly newsletter that covers upcoming programs, events, and classes, as well as programs hosted by other US-Japan organizations and/or our members that are relevant to our audience. Depending on urgency, program-specific newsletters are sent as well. These newsletters are sent to our entire mailing list, which includes both members and non-members.
